Motorcycle Hits Truck Near Mokena; Officer In Hospital

While Joseph E. Holdery, 30 years old, a state highway patrolman working out of the Blue Island office was heading north on Wolf road after directing traffic at a picnic held at the Cappel grove south of Mokena, Sunday night, he met with a serious accident when his motorcycle crashed into the side of a Chevrolet truck bearing the license number B 38-721 and driven by George Arden of Mokena.

According to the story told both machines were going north on Wolf road and just as the officer was trying to pass the truck, the truck driver turned west and directly in front of the motorcycle not noticing that the motorcycle was so close to him. In the resultant crash, Officer Holdery sustained a broken ankle and injuries about the head. He was taken to the Silver Cross hospital in Joliet.

The accident occurred a mile north of Mokena at 8:45 o'clock.

Mrs. O'Neill Favors Tax Reform

Lottie Holman O'Neill, Downers Grove representative in the state legislature and well known in this section, declared recently, that she was heartily in favor of the movement urging Gov. Henry Horner to call a special session of the legislature to consider some plan of tax reform which could be presented to the voters of the state this fall, but which the governor has turned thumbs down on.

"I believe some plan such as the one per cent limit on real estate taxes should be taken up in time to go on the fall ballot," she said in a recent interview. "We've got to arrive at some way of limiting real estate taxes and still providing enough money for the taxing bodies."

"Several plans to accomplish this have been suggested, one being a constitutional convention and the other an amendment to the present constitution. Personally, I am not in favor of a constitutional convention, because of the great expense. Then, too, it might not get us anywhere, and there is the danger that radical elements would get in control. I feel it would be bad to disturb the basic law of the state at a time like this," the 41st district legislator declared.

Referring to the one per cent tax limitation as urged by the Cook county Republican Central Committee, Mrs. O'Neill said she had not definitely made up her mind whether this was the proper procedure or not, because she was not certain that such a limitation would not work a hardship on schools and other taxing bodies. If such a limit were placed on real estate taxes, there would have to be assurance that a state income tax law or some other means of raising enough funds would have to be made effective, in her opinion.

Mrs. O'Neill pointed out that in order to have any tax reform measure go to the voters in the November election, a special session of the legislature would have to act before August 7.

Reports from Springfield are that Gov. Horner is unwilling to call such a session until after the election and consequently a move was gaining momentum through the state to urge him to change his stand and call the legislators together with some measure in mind that would result in a tax reduction.

That there will be a special session after the November election seems certain, according to Mrs. O'Neill. Governor Horner is expected to try to put through an extension of the sales tax beyond July 1, 1935, the present date of its expiration. He will insist that it be extended as a substitute for the state property tax. The state taxing board must meet before January 1 to fix the tax rate for 1935.

Mrs. O'Neill believes that there is no need to extend the sales tax nor to levy a state property tax for 1935, since the state will have enough income without either. There is now an excellent opportunity for a real reduction of the tax burden.

Sales taxes, she pointed out, are being collected at the rate of $3,332,207 a month and are increasing monthly. This means a total of $40,000,000 a year. Thus, $20,000,000 would be collected next year before the present sales tax law expires. Liquor taxes are being collected at the rate of $7,500,000 per year.

The six month collection of sales taxes next year with the $7,500,000 liquor taxes in 1935 would supply at least $27,500,000 to the state without a property tax. The gross property tax levy for the last ten years it was levied averaged less than $27,000,000 a year and the collections were less than $23,000,000 a year. There were no sales or liquor taxes to supplement these property taxes and the former administrations managed to get along very well on the lesser sum, Mrs. O'Neill said.

Farm Bureau Wins Slugfest Over Tinley 15 to 12

Next Sunday afternoon two games will be played at Frankfort with the Cardosi Oilers, a re-organized club of Kankakee County, a club that recently played a 2 to 1 game with the Kankakee Democrats. Tinley Garden Club

THOUGHT IN A GARDEN
A garden is a little spot
Where rain and sun and earth combine
To shape the frail forget-me-not
And model phlox and eglantine.

The fragile petals truly made
With dainty coloring every blade
And every leaf and every blade
As perfect as a falling tear.

The products of a Summer night
Of Nature's closely guarded
Joins
Are countless things of sheer delight
From candytuft to lily blooms.

I walk my little garden plot
And wonder just how long 'twould take
Man to invent forget-me-not
Or something like a daisy make.

The Tinley Park Garden Club held their regular meeting in the home of Mrs. Bert Fulton on Friday, July 20. There was a good attendance at the meeting which was held out on the lawn.

Reports of committees were given. Mrs. Will Funk was reported on the sick list.

Old Days Recalled By Marley Program

Days of long ago were recalled from the dim vistas of the past by the Old Time Concert given in the Marley Community church by the Young People of that Church Friday night.

The platform resembling an old time living room made a very fine setting for the program. The room was furnished with old time furniture, including a sofa with fluffy pillows. There were bright rag rugs on the floor. Then there also was the old fireplace with an iron kettle hanging on the crane. On a mantle was an old clock. Even a black pussy cat with red ribbons on it, was in the scene.

Some of the articles used in this living room scene are valuable heirlooms.

Those taking part in the program were attired in the style of fifty to sixty years ago. Miss Agnes Haley wore an old time gown which was the wedding gown of the late Mrs. Caleb Jones of New Lenox. Miss Iva Gillett who presided at the piano, was attired in the graduation dress of Miss Harriet Francis of New Lenox.

Old time favorite songs such as "Long, Long Ago", "Darling Nellie Gray", "Love's Old Sweet Song", "Old Folks at Home", "The Old Oaken Bucket", and "Auld Lang Sine" were sung.

Loren Sass representing an old colored man sang "Old Black Joe", and "Back to Dixie".

Solos were sung by Frances Gillett, E. D. Gillett, Frank Savage, Mrs. Alfred Sproat, Paul Horn, Rev. Mr. Snodgrass. A duet was sung by Irene and Owen Storm. Howard Spiess played a violin solo. A piano duet was played by Edith Spiess and Mrs. Glenn Peterson. Mrs. Ward Bush gave a reading and Marilyn Bush gave a musical reading as also did Isabel Anderson.

A very large audience attended this concert and everyone was so pleased with the originality of the program that it will be repeated at Homer and again in Marley on August 10th and 17th.

You have got to hand it to Marley for doing things.

Workers on relief projects in Vermillion and Franklin counties were on strike, the first group demanding a change in relief administration, and the second, pay increases and recognition of their union program. Some 1,000 men in Vermillion county quit work, charging discrimination, the holding up of pay checks, refusal of relief to needy, and underpaid budgets. Relief officials said their demands for food orders and a change in administration would be refused, and that the strikers would be refused further relief. In Franklin, 100 men said they would remain until the program of their newly organized union, the Illinois Workers Alliance, is recognized by the state relief commission. BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORTON W BURGESS

PETER FINDS VEERY

PETER RABBIT had spent a quiet day in the dear old Brier Patch. As evening approached he decided to go back to hear Melody the Wood Thrush sing again. Just as he drew near the Green Forest he heard from the direction of the Laughing Brook a song which caused him to change his mind and sent him hurrying in that direction. It was a very different song from that of Melody, yet if he had never heard it before Peter would have known that such a song could come from no throat except that of a member of the Thrush family.

As he drew near, those beautiful notes seemed to ring through the Green Forest like a bell. As Melody's song filled him with the feeling of peace, so this song stirred in him a feeling of the wonderful mystery of life. There was in it the very spirit of the Green Forest. It didn't take Peter long to find the singer. It was Veery, who has been named Wilson's Thrush, and by some folks is known as the Tawny Thrush.

At the sound of the patter of Peter's feet the song stopped abruptly and he was greeted with a whistled "Wheeu!"

Veery Came Out From Under Some Ferns to Greet Peter.

"Wheeu!" Then, seeing that it was no one of whom he need be afraid, Veery came out from under some ferns to greet Peter. He was smaller than his cousin Melody, being about one-fourth smaller than Welcome Robin. He wore a brown coat, but it was not as bright as that of Melody. His breast was somewhat faintly spotted with brown, and below he was white. His sides were grayish white and not spotted like Melody's sides.

"I heard you singing, and I just had to come over to see you," cried Peter. "I hope you like my song," said Veery. "I love to sing just at this hour, and I love to think that other people like to hear me."

"They do," declared Peter most decidedly. "I can't imagine how anybody could fail to like to hear you. I came way over here just to sit a while and listen. Won't you sing some more for me, Veery?"

"Certainly," replied Veery. "I wouldn't feel that I was going to bed right if I didn't sing until dark. The only way I can express my happiness and love of the Green Forest and the joy of just being back here at home is by singing."

Veery slipped out of sight and almost at once his bell-like notes began to ring through the Green Forest. Peter sat right where he was, content to just listen and feel within himself the joy of being alive and happy in the beautiful spring season which Veery was expressing so wonderfully.

Finally from deep in the Green Forest sounded the hunting call of Hooty the Owl. Veery's song stopped. "Good-night, Peter," he called softly.

PRINCE EDWARD island, a province of 88,000 inhabitants, has had only one divorce in almost 400 years. It is only 24 hours by train from Boston, and the inhabitants have adopted practically all American habits—except divorce. That is, they read American magazines and newspapers, buy American goods, see American motion pictures. The island is a popular American tourist haunt and it is said that practically all its families have relatives and friends in the United States. They are prosperous, the law admits of divorce, and only a percentage of the population have religious prohibitions against it. How then, or rather why, has this community escaped the well-known virus that so cuts into our marriage records?

William S. Dutton has quoted the governor of Prince Edward island as giving the explanation. He says:

"The prize dumbbell," says pertinent Polly, "is the girl that thought there were no such things as pickled herring and stewed clams before they started dumping the John Barleycorn into the water."

© Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.

"When a community is overwhelmingly against a thing, you simply have none of it!"

"Divorce here is looked upon as an admission of failure. It is a mark against a man's record, a thing he must explain. The divorced man has failed in his duty as a home-maker, a husband, and a father, and few duties in life are higher than these three. Public opinion on Prince Edward island demands that a man give the same attention and effort to marriage that he gives daily to his business. Consequently, divorce does not exist on the island."

Shall we follow Prince Edward island in this matter of the divorce rate which so concerns thinking people today, and to combat which suggestions are made daily from every rostrum and every pulpit as well as through the medium of print? Shall we draw back from our modern emphasis on the individual's right to happiness and "another chance" and frown people out of thoughts of seeking that happiness by changing mates?

It would probably work—for when has public opinion not had that power? The question is how do we take to a method that might remind some of Puritan whipping posts and ducking stools? How far shall we go with regulation of individual lives by public opinion—even though in the majority of cases such regulation would certainly be "for their own good?"

If public frowning upon divorce would make people take second thought in pursuing foolish or selfish or ill-advised impulses, if it will make them take deeper thought—if it will

A PRAYER IN HARVEST TIME

By ANNE CAMPBELL

LORD, breathe upon thy meadows
Thy cool and tranquil breath.
The cornfields need the silver
Of rain to stay their death.

The fields are parched and swooning
Beneath the sun's fierce heat,
The woodland green is fading,
Scorched by the noonday heat.

Lord, fan the clover blossoms
That faint beneath the sun,
And save the climbing roses—
They wilt when night is done.

Set clouds above my pathway
Where now the hot sun stings,
And spread above the highway
The shadow of thy wings.

Lord, send a cool breeze blowing
Across the city street,
And on the dusty roadways
Where town and country meet.

Send down thy rain to bless us—
And lift thy sacred hand
To comfort with thy blessing
A thirsty, weary land.

Telephonic Atmosphere

In the Arctic regions people can talk to one another quite well when they are as much as a mile apart—the cold, dense air, and the smooth surface of the ice and snow both being helpful to the carrying of sound.

SEA OF GALILEE

Light on Biblical stories of the Sea of Galilee has been shed by Capt. Herbert J. Horsey, who has completed fifteen years of commercial flying. While flying in the Far East he frequently descended on that famous body of water. "Right across the sea runs a hidden reef, not far below the surface," he said on his arrival in London. "Other parts of the lake are hundreds of feet deep, and it seemed to me that this reef might account for the Bible story of the walking on the sea. Present-day weather conditions bear out the New Testament accounts of sudden storms raging on the lake. One moment it may be as smooth as a mill pond, the next, the water becomes troubled, and in a few minutes you have a rough sea, with a wind blowing at 80 miles an hour."

IS CRAZY WATER EPSOM SALTS

No, says Dr. W. E. Fitch in

NOT A MAN-MADE DRUG

Tells why natural mineral water is so often beneficial for "rheumatic" aches and pains

On a recent Sunday afternoon broadcast on the National Broadcasting network the following discussion took place between Mr. Gene Arnold and Dr. W. E. Fitch, internationally known authority on natural mineral waters.

GENE ARNOLD: "I receive letters from people saying they heard that Crazy Water Crystals are made of nothing but salts—Epsom Salts or Glauber's Salts. These people want to know if it's true you can buy some of these salts for a few cents, and get the same effect as you do with Crazy Water Crystals."

DR. FITCH: "No, it is NOT true." GENE ARNOLD: "I'm glad to hear you say that, because I know your opinion is worth a great deal. But will you explain a little more about it? What are the true facts?"

DR. FITCH: "The facts are that it has always been hard for a few doubting Thomases and skeptics to believe that old Mother Nature knows how to prepare and compound natural mineral waters in a way that cannot be duplicated in a laboratory. In the course of my studies I have found that those same doubts were expressed. Two Thousand Years Ago, in the early days of natural mineral water therapy. The truth is that natural mineral water and natural crystals from such waters are as different from synthetic or artificial salts as day from night. And that's why the medical profession has always been in favor of the Natural Waters—has always insisted that they are the one product of Nature that cannot be imitated successfully by man. People have tried for many, many years to make up synthetic concoctions to take their place but they do not have the same effect. The predominating chemical constituent of Crazy Water Crystals is sodium sulphate, but it is in its Natural State, and has a far different physiological effect than the synthetic salts made in a laboratory. When you buy salts for a few cents you get just what you pay for—a dose of salts. But when you use Crazy Water Crystals, you get undiluted minerals in their natural state, taken from natural mineral water by evaporation with nothing added."

That is why Crazy Water Crystals have proven themselves so beneficial in the treatment of "rheumatic" aches and pains. Thousands of people in all parts of the United States testify to this.

If you, or any of your friends, suffer from "rheumatic" pains we suggest you investigate Crazy Water Crystals immediately. Ask any of the millions who have used them. Then get a standard size box—it costs only $1.50 and is ample for at least three weeks treatment. Crazy Water Company, Mineral Wells, Texas.

Washington.—The end of June statements of all of the banks of the country are now a matter of record and Bank Deposits Increase surprisingly, nearly all of the individual banks have shown increases in deposits and resources over a year ago. A couple of the largest banks in New York showed such astounding increases in deposits as $100,000,000, compared with June, 1933. But irrespective of the increase in deposits—that is, the money actually in possession of the banks—almost none of them disclosed any increase in the total loans now outstanding. Indeed, the rule was a decline from June 30, 1933.

Banking authorities in the government and outside tell me these figures on deposits and resources clearly indicate an improvement in the general banking situation. The Federal Reserve board in its latest review of conditions declared the banking structure was on a much firmer foundation. Yet, the fact that the banks have not made loans is being seized upon by a certain segment of politicians and alleged economists as proof that the banks are not doing their part. From very high quarters in the administration we hear intermittent yelps that the banks are not co-operating and are not attempting to loan money. This condition, as they construe it, is being used as the excuse for the existence of numerous of the government loaning agencies and for other activities under the New Deal that result in getting money out into the country.

The circumstances in the decline of bank loans, however, is to my mind not such as the critics of the banks claim. It must be remembered first of all that bankers, when they make loans, are putting out money belonging to you and to other depositors. They must be reasonably sure of getting it back, even though we do have now the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation that is supposed to prevent losses for the depositors. Bankers, therefore, are willing to make loans of the vast sums of idle cash their banks hold if they can only find someone who will put up security guaranteeing a return of the borrowed funds.

While some of the critics of the bankers have been continuing their attacks, I note statements from the Public Works administration, from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, from the Home Owners' Loan Corporation, and the Farm Credit administration, among others, which show very clearly that the government or its agencies is unwilling to make loans unless it can foresee a reasonable chance for repayment. Just the other day, the Public Works administration withdrew an allocation of some $6,877,000 for construction of a bridge in Chicago because, according to Public Works Administrator Ickes, the political subdivision of that city having jurisdiction was unable to provide a guarantee of repayment of that loan. Every day local units of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation are turning down applications for home owners who seek government money through mortgages on their property to aid them in whatever distress they find themselves. The same statement may be made respecting loans by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in its dealings with industry.

Lately the various Federal Reserve banks issued a weekly statement of their operations, and only three of the twelve reserve institutions reported having made loans to industry.

I have inquired in numerous quarters for reasons why borrowers were so few. The consensus Why Borrow—given me by men ers Are Few who should know, is that there are two distinct reasons for the small amount of loans being made by banks and, of course, the same reasons apply in the case of government loans, except that the government has been known to put out money in places from which it probably never will be returned. One of the reasons mentioned was that individuals and firms who most need money have nothing but their own signed obligations to put up as a guarantee. Obviously, if an individual or a corporation has no resources, the note of that individual or that corporation is of little value, however honest and well intentioned the borrower may be.

The second reason, and one that is quite as important, is the lack of confidence which business men tell me exists to a large extent in commerce and industry. Whatever is the basis for this lack of confidence is not a matter of concern in this discussion, but its existence seem to me to be a matter of the gravest importance.

Whether taxpayers are afraid of the burden in levies which they can foresee, is the reason for their hesitancy, is not now wholly apparent. Many observers are convinced it is an influential factor. There is also the question which one hears so often asked: Where and how far does the New Deal intend to go in socialization and reform? It seems to be obvious that each of these, and perhaps others, are factors standing in the way of a sound expansion of business under the recovery plan.

In the meantime, the federal government is going ahead with its program to spend our way out of the depression. Here is one item to show what is happening.

This road building has resulted in the construction of enough miles—more than 22,000—of new highway almost to encircle the earth. This money was voted by congress in the last session as a means of creating work. Proponents of the appropriation, and administration authorities, hold that the $400,000,000 earmarked for road building would provide thousands of new jobs. Bureau of public roads figures indicate that this has been the result, but I find many observers who are wondering whether the amount of money that has been paid to labor for highway construction has been a proper proportionate part of the total set aside, when the purpose was solely the making of jobs.

Total figures by the public roads office show that 6,360 miles were completed and in use on July 1 of this year and that 14,000 miles were under construction, with the probability that they will be in use by the end of 1934. Contracts have been awarded, the bureau has said, for the construction of about 1,900 miles more, and work on this portion will be under way in the late summer.

It used to be assumed that when economic conditions were below par, many owners of automobiles would dis-

Still Use Their Cars pense with their machines until they were better situated financially. Such, however, seems not to have been the case in the last year. Automobile registrations, while they declined in 1933, continued to remain at an unusually high figure as compared with recent years. Official statistics show that 23,872,000 motor vehicles were in use last year. This is only 1 per cent below 1932. The decline from 1931 to 1932 was larger, but the point is, according to officials, that the decline was very small. The authorities insist that the reduction in total motor vehicles in use as compared with 1932 should be considered as hardly noticeable when the whole country and the whole number of motor vehicles is considered.

Although I have not the official statistics concerning the sales of new cars last year, responsible sources inform me that this business was very much improved and they add also that the sales for 1934 in the first six months have been exceptionally high. This would indicate that a great many individuals have found money, in some way or another, which they could spare for a new automobile.

Washington observers lately have noticed an increasing tendency among conservatives throughout the country, whether Democratic or Republican, to align themselves under one banner. The movement as yet is much in the embryo, but I am told by various observers who are acquainted with political trends that the alignment is taking a rather definite shape.

Some months ago I reported in these columns the belief of many political leaders that Mr. Roosevelt, as President, was definitely engaged in the formation of a Roosevelt party that would adhere strictly to liberal standards. Assignments which the President has made, the legislation which he has proposed, and his general attitude on social matters coupled with an absolute disregard of old-time Democratic principles, has laid the groundwork for the regrouping of voters under a liberal and conservative alignment. It is to be noted in this connection that Mr. Roosevelt is continuing to expand his liberal doctrines under the guidance of some of the political leaders heretofore held to be radical members of the two old parties.

Another factor and influence that is noted now to be at work is the gradual concentration of business interests on the conservative side of political questions under the New Deal. Washington has heard lately of efforts being made which would result in the molding of business interests, or the spokesmen thereof, into a compact organization as a means of combating policies of the New Deal regarded by business leaders as radical in character.

It is too early to attempt a forecast as to the scope of this move. Nevertheless, it is quite apparent that a concentration of this strength is under way. Not only will these men and interests oppose expansion of such policies as NRA and the AAA but they are organizing to fight the ever-increasing burden of taxation and to oppose extension of government in business.

It is a matter of record, of course, that the tendency of government policies in the United States since the World war has been steadily to the left. Conservatives have been unable thus far to check this trend, largely because the conservative element never has stood together. It is important and significant, therefore, that for the first time we are observing the development of a conservative organization in this country which has the avowed purpose of turning the American government back somewhat to the right and, as the leaders describe it, back again to the Constitution as it was originally drawn.

Egyptian Sphinx Merely Portrait Bust of King

The Egyptian sphinx is no longer a mystery, Dr. George S. Duncan of American university told an Archeological Institute of America meeting.

The titanic statue which has excited the wonder of the ages as to its meaning and purpose, he declared, was nothing more than a "portrait bust of an Egyptian king of the Fourth dynasty placed on the body of a lion." The builders, he said, had no hidden purpose, but proposed only an extraordinary honor to the king.

"There is nothing whatsoever mysterious about it," Doctor Duncan said. "Any such vagary, even on the part of laymen, now is inexcusable."

Doctor Duncan presented evidence of the origin of most of the institutions of the civilized world in Egypt thousands of years before the Christian era, and declared the Egyptian delta may have been inhabited by human beings as much as 200,000 years ago at the very beginning of the Ice Ages.

The great development of the human mind, Doctor Duncan said, came in Egypt about 3000 B. C., and he gave his own translations of inscriptions which, he insisted, demonstrated clearly that the Egyptians not only believed in immortality, but had established ethical tests. Some of these inscriptions might have been taken from the Bible, he said, such as: "Thou hast departed that thou mightest live. Thou hast not departed that thou shouldst die."

The famous "Book of the Dead," he said, was intended as a guide book of the journey to the next world and contained a list of 42 questions which the dead man must answer satisfactorily in respect to his conduct on earth. Among the sins which would bar him was laziness.

At about the same period, he said, there grew up a strong monotheism with the sun as the sole deity. Two hymns of this period have been preserved, Doctor Duncan said, "which, if the name of Ammon Ra was changed to Jehovah, could be sung in any Christian church next Sunday without striking the congregation as unusual."

At about the same time, Doctor Duncan said, there was a great development in the medical arts, and most of the medicines employed by the Egyptian physicians are used today. Among them were cod liver oil and yeast for anemic conditions. At this time also dentistry had its first development. The king was attended by three specialists—one for the eyes, another for the teeth and another for the stomach. The royal dentist developed the difficult feat of draining tooth abscesses.

There was in effect at about this time, he pointed out, a tax system based on the varying amount of cultivatable land, which might be adopt-

PRECIOUS BIBLE MANUSCRIPT IN BRITISH KEEPING

The safe arrival at the British museum of the Codex Sinaiticus is cause for rejoicing among Christian scholars. It ranks with the Codex Vaticanus as one of the most important of early Bible manuscripts, of which about 114 have been brought to light. It was spared the damage wrought upon many of the treasures of the imperial Russian government when the revolution occurred. Since 1869, when it was acquired by the Imperial library, it has been held as among the most illuminating of the codices. It was found in 1844 in the monastery of St. Catherine on Mt. Sinai, and is of Fourth century origin.

Probably the attention incident to its acquisition by the British government will revive interest in its interpretation as a basis of accepted modern texts. It bears evidence of many corrections, but none dating later than the Seventh century, and its source has been traced from the letter style to at least one scribe who worked on the Codex Vaticanus. The New Testament is complete, but part of the Old is missing. It was reproduced in color by an English press about twenty-five years ago, a notation of British interest now heightened by its new home.

The sale of the manuscript by the Russian government is significant. It is one of the most precious relics of the early church. Left to themselves, the deeply religious people of Russia never would have parted with it. But the Soviets will have nothing to do with religion. Disregarding its value to the world of scholarship, they offered it for sale, asking $2,500,000. The British government eventually paid $500,000. It was delivered in London crudely wrapped and without ceremony, a gesture of aversion to its religious significance by the Soviet emissary that was promptly supplanted by an attitude of reverential respect when the British took possession.

Probably the transfer will lead to further exploration of the present resting place of other notable manuscripts of the same period. One story is that several have found their way into the vaults of American collectors. They were laboriously prepared by devout monks whose handiwork glows with religious fervor. They were written on parchment for the ages, and the British museum acquisition is described as being in perfect condition, a testimony to the integrity of the art.—Indianapolis News.

Housewife's Idea Box

To Test Eggs

Here is a good way to test eggs for freshness. Make a brine by adding two ounces of salt to a pint of water. Place your eggs, one at a time, into this brine. Good eggs will sink and bad ones will float. Those that float do so because air enters the egg as it gets older. This air compartment makes the egg float.

Beyond Comparison in Quality, Construction, Appearance and Price With Any First Quality Tire Made

THE way to create a TIRE SENSATION is to give the people what they want, and Firestone has done this with the new Firestone Century Progress Tire.

I. C. to Put New Panama Limited In Service Dec. 1

Extensive improvements in the passenger service of the Illinois Central System are announced by L. A. Downs, president. They include:

Operation of a new Panama Limited, famous train between Chicago and New Orleans.

Construction of a high-speed, streamlined train for operation between Chicago and St. Louis.

Increased use of air-conditioned cars on principal trains.

Modernization of coaches and chair cars.

Faster schedules on various runs. Addition of various other new trains.

One of the tragedies of the depression to many travelers was the discontinuance of the Panama Limited in May, 1932. This famous train between Chicago and New Orleans, with connections to and from St. Louis, Louisville and the Mississippi Gulf Coast, had an international reputation. The Panama Limited will return to service with the opening of the winter travel season, approximately December 1. It will not be the old Panama Limited, however. The new train will consist of all-new equipment especially built for this operation, embodying the latest developments in design and decoration, and it will have a faster schedule.

First news of the building of a streamlined train for service on the Illinois Central broke recently with an announcement from Washington that the Public Works Administration had agreed to lend the railroad approximately one-half million dollars for this purpose. It was decided in advance that this train will operate between Chicago and St. Louis and it will be built particularly for that service. This train, too, will be thoroughly modern in every detail of design and decoration and it will afford faster service between these two cities. Patrons of the Illinois Central System are invited by Mr. Downs to suggest the name for it.

One of the most popular developments in railway passenger service is the increasing use of air-conditioned cars on passenger trains. Use of such equipment insures a plentiful supply of clean fresh air, free of smoke and dirt, properly humidified, and cooled or heated to an even temperature. The Illinois Central was among the first railroads to adopt this popular innovation, with the air conditioning of The Daylight between Chicago and St. Louis. Now further progress is to be made. The new Panama Limited and the new streamlined train will be completely air-conditioned. In addition, work is already under way on the air-conditioning of dining and lounge cars for other trains.

Pending the wider adoption of air-conditioned equipment, the Illinois Central has been precooling passenger trains at its principal terminals. Precooling will be continued until the adoption of complete air-conditioning renders it no longer necessary.

The dining and lounge cars which are now being air-conditioned are also being completely rebuilt, and as they are turned out for service they will be like new. The lounge cars will have deep carpets, easy chairs, and sofas, reading lamps, writing desks, and well furnished libraries; and their decorations will harmonize in a carefully studied blend of color and design. The dining cars also will have new furnishings and new equipment throughout and will offer a pleasing blend of color and design.

Of greatest interest of all to the average traveler is the improvement that is being made in the coaches and chair cars, which also are being completely rebuilt and refurnished. There will be individual seats designed and cushioned to afford the maximum comfort. Seat and floor coverings, drapes, lighting fixtures and electric fans will match in rich coloring and refined design. Each car will have separate smoking lounges for men and women, spacious in size and luxuriously furnished.

In addition to the fast schedules that are promised on the new trains, running time of other trains is being shortened. Schedules have been speeded up on The Creole, The Louisiana and The Hawkeye. Previous schedules are bettered as follows: Chicago-New Orleans, forty-five minutes; St. Louis, New Orleans, thirty-five minutes; Louisville-New Orleans, thirty minutes; Chicago-Memphis, fifty minutes; Chicago-Omaha, Chicago-Sioux City and Chicago-Sioux Falls, one hour each.

Another feature of the general plan for improvement of passenger service is the recent addition of the World's Fair Special, operating between Memphis and Chicago. This train has been timed to reach and leave Chicago at hours most convenient to World's Fair visitors. Trains have also been added to the service between Carbondale and St. Louis and between Chicago, Freeport and Dubuque.

"This program of improving our passenger service is an expression of faith," Mr. Downs said: "first our faith in the continuing improvement in business, second our faith in the railroad as a passenger carrier. Our passenger business has been increasing and we think it will continue to increase. It goes without saying that our improvements are providing employment for a good many workmen."

Mokena Beats

Joliet Horses

Mokena won another game Sunday, beating the Joliet Flying Horses 17 to 4. This was about the easiest game of the season with hardly any opposition at all. It was hardly more than a practice game for the Aces.

Patty had 18 strike outs and one walk. First man up for Joliet struck out, the second man repeating, the third man grounded out. No runs no hits. Shorty was first man up and he hit a two bagger. Jimmy walked, Cappel walked, McGovney doubled scoring Laufer, Marti, Cappel. Bill grounded out. Brownie hit a triple scoring McGovney. Walsh struck out. Butch singled scoring Brown. Homering fanned. 5 runs 4 hits no errors.

This is the way the game went on. Joliet one in the second, two in the 4th, one in the ninth. Mokena scored 5 in the first, 1 in the third, 3 in the fourth, 3 in the fifth, 5 in the sixth.

The boys were all hitting the ole pill around and brought up their batting averages.

Well folks so much for this game we will see you next Sunday. Adios.

Why I'm the best advertisement for Gas heat in this neighborhood

Mr. A. F. Bueschel, 6006 South Richmond Street, is sold on gas heat. Read what he says about it.

No soot, dirt or dust will settle in the Bueschel home at 6006 S. Richmond St.

Mrs. Bueschel can tell you some of the advantages of gas heat. She says, "I don't see soot, dirt or dust in my house any more."

Clean Gas Heat at World's Fair

(Above) The basement now is a useful room. The children take possession and turn it into a playroom.
(Left) "I never have to run up and down the basement stairs any more to tend furnace," says Mr. Bueschel. "I guess my friends will tell you I'm thoroughly sold on gas heat."

YOU INVEST NOTHING To Try Gas Heat!

Gas heat can be installed without your investing one cent for equipment. To prove that every home can now afford to heat with gas, we'll install it at our expense—remove it at our expense, if you don't like it. Accept this startling offer. Phone our nearest office TODAY.

Prepare for a happy winter

The Bueschel home is another one that has banished soot and dirt. With gas heat the house stays clean. Curtains and drapes are free of grime. The basement is no longer full of dust and ashes. No steps to climb, no ashes to haul, no shoveling. Gas heat is clean heat. And it is absolutely without bother. All you do to regulate the heat—day or night, regardless of the weather—is to set a little thermostat on the wall.

Now—before you order your next winter's fuel supply, investigate gas heat. Prepare for a happy, trouble-free winter. The radical reduction of rates—now less than half of what they were a few years ago—has made gas heat practical for every home. And remember, it costs nothing for equipment to try gas heat. You try it for one month, two months or a year before you decide. While you are trying it you pay only $3 a month rental during the heating months in the average home. This charge is included with the bill for the gas you use. If at any time within the year you decide you don't like gas heat—and you are the sole judge—we'll remove it and replace your former heating equipment in good workmanlike condition.

Order gas heat now

It will pay you to order gas heat now. Think of it. A clean basement all summer long. And next winter no coal shoveling, hauling ashes, getting up at daybreak to fix the fire. With gas heat you fire your furnace from your easy chair.

Phone the Public Service Company today for free estimate and full details of starting office.

To Stage AAA Auto Races

AAA sanctioned Auto races will be staged for the first time this year in the Chicago area on Sunday afternoon, August 19, at the new fairgrounds speedway located at North Avenue and River Road, according to Earl Newberry, race promoter who has recently left his eastern speedway associates to engage in activity in the central states. The new fairgrounds speedway offers an excellent track, eighty feet wide and pronounced by racing officials as a marvelous course. The plant with its covered grandstands and modern appointments will house a series of speed events during the next few weeks.

The AAA Contest Board has mailed entry blanks to the championship drivers and it is expected that two score or more of the best speedway and dirt track pilots will be on hand for the inaugural competition. Blanks have been mailed Bill Cummings, Indianapolis winner this year, Frank Brisko, who usually qualifies in the first row and who was the pace setter this year after the first lap and Maurice Rose, who finished second to Cummings this year and who is making a hot race for Championship honors.

Seven races will be programmed in addition to the time trials and the new AAA racing promoters organization have promised that a stellar field will be on hand.

Has Best Speaking Voice on the Air

John B. Kennedy

ASK the average radio listener who has the most easily understood speaking voice on the air today and who it is who talks most entertainingly, and he will reply John B. Kennedy.
Kennedy is heard over a nationwide hook-up of 26 N. B. C. stations every Wednesday night and like others who have been trained in newspaper and magazine offices, knows how to present his facts in the order of their importance.
Kennedy was born in Quebec, Canada, and was educated abroad and at St. Louis University. He began newspaper work with the Chicago Journal and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. He served on Hoover's relief committee in 1920 and 1921. The same year—1924—he joined the staff of Collier's Weekly, he made his radio debut.
Every Wednesday night several million radio listeners tune in to hear Kennedy. They are always well paid.

Who Says
That Nobody
Loves a Policeman?

There is one thing sure... that isn't true so far, at least, as Officer Finney is concerned.

You know Finney—Finney of the Force—whose comical adventures are portrayed for readers of this paper by Ted O'Loughlin, brilliant young artist.

This genial copper gets a lot of fun out of the things that happen day by day as he travels his beat, and the fun is passed on to you as you read of his activities.

Have a laugh with Finney and tell your friends about him.
